MANY CHARMING GOWNS
OF THE PRINCESS ENABride Of King Alfonso Has Exquisite Tros-seau On Display In Madrid, Spain.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madrid, May 25.—Preparations for next week's wedding of King Alfonso and Princess Ena of Battenberg go on apace. Each day sees Madrid more crowded with visitors. Among the late arrivals are a number of American travelers who have temporarily turned aside from the beaten paths of tourist travel to put in a week or so here to enjoy the magnificent fete and entertainments attending the royal wedding. A surprising number of visitors from South America and from Cuba have also put in an appearance. The royal guests, including princes of the blood from every country of Europe, are arriving, and the processions escorting them and their suites from the railway station to the several palaces where they will be lodged during their stay in the city afford brilliant spectacles that are much enjoyed by the populace.

The trousseau of the royal bride was placed on exhibition today at the senate house. The spacious salons were beautifully decorated with palms and flowers, and the exhibition, arranged by the court attendants, attracted a great crowd, anxious to inspect the royal bridal attire. In addition to the wedding gown of cream-colored satin adorned with priceless lace, the trousseau includes a large number of other gowns, some made in England and others in Paris. Among the dainty evening gowns is a short-waisted one of pale mauve mousseline; the skirt, inserted lengthwise with guipure insertion and tucks. About the hem ruffles were arranged in waves, and at intervals were green medallions embroidered in delicate colors. The bodice was trimmed to correspond with the skirt with Valenciennes lace and guipure.

Another one was composed of pale blue Liberty satin cut en princess. The skirt was trimmed with inch-wide plaited frills edged with white, arranged in pairs, with insertions of very narrow white Valenciennes lace. The corset was finely gathered, and the simple bodice was daintily trimmed with platings and lace to correspond with the skirt. Pale pink and white satin foulard in a small design was a striking material for a day dress. The bodice was made with a small transparent pointed yoke of Cluny lace outlined with ribbon velvet applique, and the fullness was set into fine gathers at the waist.

A part of King Alfonso's wedding gifts to his bride have also been placed on exhibition. These comprise a golden crown studded with diamonds, a diamond diadem, a diamond necklace, a pearl necklace, a golden bracelet studded with diamonds, brooches and earrings. All the gems were taken from old pieces of jewelry in possession of the sovereign and reset in newer fashion. The crown especially is a magnificent piece of art work. One of the pendants is composed of enormous pearls, which the young king selected from hundreds submitted to him.

OLDEST OF LIVING
BAPTIST CLERGYMEN
CENTURY OLD TODAYRev. Dr. William Howe, Founder of Tremont Temple, Boston, Mass.,
Celebrates Birthday.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Boston, Mass., May 25.—With mind keenly alive and unimpaired by the march of time, Rev. Dr. William Howe, founder of the church that at Tremont Temple and believed to be the oldest living Baptist clergyman, observed his 100th birthday today at his home in Cambridge. Dr. Howe continues to enjoy wonderful health. His mind is as clear and vigorous as ever. He can talk in a most interesting way about present or past events. For the Baptist denomination, with which he has been all his life connected, he preserves a high regard. Born in Worcester, May 25, 1806, Dr. Howe was educated at Amherst Academy, Colby College and Newton Theological Seminary. He had become deeply interested in mission work in Boston, establishing a Sunday school in a sail loft on Charlestown street, from which later grew the Merrimac Street Union Baptist church. This church was afterward united with Tremont Temple.

In all, Dr. Howe founded eight missions during his years of mission work in Boston and out of them ultimately grew four strong churches. Dr. Howe has long taken a deep interest in Spelman Seminary, in Atlanta, Ga., a colored educational institution. He has given largely to the seminary, erecting a chapel in honor of his wife. Until nine or ten years ago he was in the habit of paying an annual visit to the seminary.

DANE AND MEXICAN
PUG STARS WILL GO
FOR CHAMPIONSHIPBattling Nelson and Aurelia Herrera Will Have Their Second Bout at Los Angeles Tonight.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Los Angeles, Cal., May 25.—Never in this city has more interest been taken in a pugilistic encounter than is now manifested regarding the lightweight championship contest tonight between "Battling" Nelson, the Dane, and Aurelia Herrera, the Mexican. Despite the misgivings felt some time ago because of the unwarranted calling off of the Mystic Shrine conclave and the consequent diminution of the crowd of visitors expected to be in Los Angeles at the time of the fight, there is now every reason to believe that the Pacific Athletic club's pavilion will be well filled when the fighters crawl through the ropes tonight to engage in their twenty round bout.

So far as the critics are able to judge there is little to choose between the two fighters as regards their physical condition. Herrera has been training more or less faithfully ever since the match was made, something he seldom has been known to do before. Nelson has taken the usual good care of himself and the reports from his training camp are to the effect that he is as fit as a fiddle. Both fighters appear confident of winning the decision and pulling down the victor's share of the $25,000 purse. This will be the second encounter of Nelson and Herrera in the squared circle. Their first meeting was two years ago at Butte, Mont., in that battle the Mexican landed one of his wallop on Nelson's jaw, Nelson went down for the count of nine, but managed to "stall" until he recovered. Then he started in earnest and the result was that he was given the decision on points at the end of twenty rounds of terrific fighting. Nelson has learned a great deal about the game since that time and may be counted on to fight shy of the Mexican's terrific punches. If he succeeds in doing so, he will undoubtedly win tonight's battle, as he possesses the stamina to tire Herrera out before the limit is reached. According to all close followers of the game the Mexican's one chance for victory lies in his ability to catch Nelson off his guard for a moment and thereby get in his sleep-producing punch.

"KAMP KOOKER" HIS LATEST INVENTION

William Ruger, Jr., Seeks to Patent Another Labor-Saving Device.

William Ruger, Jr., is again an inventor. This time the device is a portable "Kamp Kooker," designed, as the name indicates, to simplify the labor of preparing delectable table delicacies over the open-air blaze. An iron pipe with attachable legs takes the place of the cross-pole and the forked sticks which the camper has had to cut and drive into the ground and there are handy, easily adjustable wire frames for the skillet or pan which is to be let down over the coals as well as pot-hooks for the kettle and coffee pot. The mechanism also includes a little four-legged arrangement under which a few coals can be scraped and on which a piece of steak can be broiled or bread toasted to a turn. Mr. Ruger has applied for a patent and is negotiating with parties to manufacture the device on a royalty basis.

News for the Railroad Men.

RAILROAD
North-Western Road.
Engineer F. A. Shumway is laying off.

A new method of "bumming" was revealed day before yesterday to Roy Smith, day engine dispatcher's helper. He was doing his usual work about locomotive number 119, which in charge of Engineer Harry North had come off the Madison division, when he placed a few tools on top of the box at the rear of the tank. Immediately there emanated from within a series of "Please, Mr. Fireman, let me out!" Smith was dumfounded, he hit the lid and there lay a negro hobo. Before Smith realized the situation the colored man jumped out and "skedaddled" away through the yards.

The work of making the annual repairs on the Monterey bridge has been commenced.

The second switch-engine was off duty yesterday.

Many Steel Rails.

The railroads of this country have enough steel rails ordered for delivery in 1906 and 1907 to lay a single track of ninety pound steel, 27,930 miles long. This would be 7,400 miles longer than the Vanderbilt system, and would be enough to girdle the globe, and yet have plenty of steel left to build the necessary side tracks and spurs. Railroad men declare that never before has there been so many orders placed for delivery a year ahead of time as has been placed this year. The aggressive railroad building in the west and southwest is believed to explain these heavy orders. Railroads that are not building new tracks have taken time by the forelock and ordered rails for the necessary renewal, so as not to be crowded out when they are actually needed.

"Skilled Workmen"—In Mexico.

The inefficiency of Mexican labor was under discussion by a group of mining promoters.

"On my last trip to Mexico," said one, "while our train halted at Amulco, a dinner station on the Mexican Central, I alighted and watched the mechanic who went from car to car sounding the wheels with a hammer, presumably to test their condition. He was a fair type of the native skilled workmen." Just to draw him out a little I inquired.

"Why do you run the wheels?" "Setting down his torch, he stared at me in amazement. 'Because the master mechanic tells me to,' he replied. 'But why?' I persisted. 'What good does it do?' 'I do not know, señor,' said he. 'The master mechanic tells me to strike each wheel, and I do so. That is enough for me.' 'How long have you been working at this job?' I asked. 'Two years,' he replied. For two years he had been going through the form of sounding the car wheels, without the slightest knowledge of the object of the test or the slightest curiosity concerning it."—Philadelphia Record.

SALE OF MINE WAS FORCED

SHORTAGE OF CARS COMPELS OWNERS TO SELL.

Operator Pays for Use of Cars Although His Allotment Was Cut Short for Days.

Philadelphia, May 25.—Additional evidence of discrimination by the Pennsylvania railroad in the distribution of cars in the soft coal field was presented to the interstate commerce commission Thursday. John Lloyd, a banker and coal operator of Altoona, who is one of the members of the banking firm of Cassatt & Co., testified that the Columbia Coal company was forced to sell the Alexandria mine because of the shortage of cars, and George E. Scott, of the Puritan and Crescent Coal companies, declared that he paid for the use of railroad cars when he failed to secure his allotment and that during a period of 23 days the railroad had furnished him with only one car. He also asserted that Michael Trump, general superintendent of transportation had told him the company had intended to protect the Berwind White company at all hazards.

During the time that Mr. Lloyd was on the stand counsel for the commission made persistent effort to force an admission that he had been associated in a business way with President Cassatt. Mr. Lloyd, however, said that his only relations with Mr. Cassatt were through Cassatt & Co., with whom President Cassatt carried a personal bank account. The railroad company had for many years been a depositor with the First National bank of Altoona, of which Mr. Lloyd is president.

Mr. Lloyd gave testimony concerning the organization of various mining companies, in which he is interested, stating that he considered it good business policy to have railroad men among the stockholders of the coal companies.

Frederick Vrooman, an assistant train master, told the commission that he had received gifts of money in amounts from $5 to $20 from various coal companies for favors which he did not grant.

International Trade.
 Trade of the United States with the United Kingdom in the fiscal year 1905 aggregated $700,000,000, and formed more than one-fourth of our total foreign commerce. Statistics show that the exports from the United States to the United Kingdom in 1905 aggregated $223,000,000 out of a total of $1,518,000,000, and thus formed one-third of our total exports. Imports from the United Kingdom aggregated $170,000,000 out of a total importation of $1,117,000,000, and thus formed one-sixth of our total imports.

 Fond du Lac Bulletin: A Milwaukee minister preached a sermon with David Harum for the text, and he entertained his audience as thoroughly as he has at any time during his pastorate of a quarter of a century.

Houser is Unconcerned.
 Fond du Lac Commonwealth: Secretary of State Houser does not seem greatly concerned over the complications arising from his connection with the alleged attempt of the Equitable Life Assurance society to bribe the insurance commissioner. The indications are that Mr. Houser is perfectly willing and even anxious to have the matter aired in the courts, and, to this end, it is stated will have a complaint sworn out by a friend; if someone who is not a friend neglects to take the initiative. According to Commissioner Host, the matter of bringing action is "up to the district attorney." If that official should fail to institute proceedings, then Mr. Houser may start his friendly suit. Should the latter course be pursued it will at least indicate that the secretary of state is pretty sure of his ground and expects to get some good campaign material out of the proceedings.

 According to a Berlin paper, a Hungarian has invented an electrical device by means of which one man can operate accurately all of the guns on a warship.

Record Shot.
 Frank Ward, of New South Wales, is believed to have killed more rabbits at one shot than any other man living. His record is 27. The little animals were drinking at a tank and occurred every opportunity for a big kill.

...FORTY YEARS AGO...

Janesville Daily Gazette, Friday,
May 25, 1866—Probably England never was convulsed with so serious a financial panic as that which makes her tremble now. Business houses and corporations which hitherto have counted their wealth by millions, have gone down in the vortex of financial ruin. And all this has been caused not by actual war but by the threatening aspect of affairs as regards the peace of the old world. Years of the fire and hail of bloody war failed to do for America what the black cloud just above the horizon has done for one of the strongest governments on the Eastern continent.

The Algerian journals are filled with details of a disastrous invasion of locusts. Thick clouds of them have alighted on the country near Dellys, and they are also numerous at Ma-rango. The cultivated slopes of Ma-tapha have suffered severely, the corn crops being completely destroyed. At bimadreis and Birkadem the green of the potato and bean crop has been completely destroyed. Great numbers have appeared at Algiers and the neighborhood, and Churchwell has been assailed by innumerable flights which have caused dreadful ravages at Oued-el-Along. A letter from Oron announces their arrival in that district, where Teardra has suffered the most. The military authorities have placed the soldiers at the disposal of the colonists.

Sale and Exchange Day—Tomorrow is the day appointed for the monthly gathering of the farmers of the county, at the Fair Grounds of the County Society.

The remains of the seven Ohio soldiers of General Mitchell's famous railroad expedition, who were hung by the rebels at Chattanooga and properly interred.

The Great Fire in Hudson, Wis.—
The fire in this enterprising town is one of the most destructive, considering the size of the place, that ever occurred in this western country. It has a population of about 2000 inhabitants and the loss is estimated at $350,000.

ILLINOIS BANKERS INDICTED

PRINCIPAL OWNERS OF PEKIN
INSTITUTION GIVE BONDS.

Tazewell County Grand Jury Returns
Four Bills Containing 125 Counts
Against Each Man.

Peoria, Ill., May 25.—The four principal owners in the failed Tels Smith bank of Pekin, Ill., were indicted under 125 counts each by the Tazewell county grand jury Thursday.

Judge Worthington fixed the bond of the defendants at $35,000 each and security was furnished at once. The true bills each charge embezzlement and each count is based on the charge of an individual depositor who placed money in the bank after evidence offered to the grand jury indicated that the institution was insolvent.

The men under indictment are D. C.
Smith, the aged head of the firm; E. F.
Unland, Conrad Luppen and Henry Block. Habbe Velde and Luppe Luppen, also partners in the bank, were held by the jury to have had no knowledge of the bank's insolvent condition.

The courtroom was crowded when the grand jury reported, and it was with difficulty that the bailiffs, maintained order when the list of indictments was read by the clerk. The de-positors, who have used every effort to secure indictments, were wild with excitement. Efforts on the part of the partners of the bank to raise sufficient funds to meet all liabilities are in progress and are expected to culminate in a proposition to the depositors at a meeting of creditors in Peoria on May 28. Schedules filed by the individual partners and by the bank showed liabilities of practically $500,000, and assets of less than $300,000.

DISORDER DUE TO GUARDS
Deputies at Plum Run Mine Fire Guns
to Intimidate Striking Mineworkers.

Stuebenville, O., May 25.—The Plum Run mines of the United States Coal company were started Thursday with 225 nonunion men. The men were escorted to the mines by armed guards.
There was no disorder, but the foreign element is feared if the mine is kept running. Reports of attacks and rioting were the result of some of the deputies who early Thursday fired their guns in the air to intimidate any of the strikers that might be about.

Prohibits Use of Feathers.

Albany, N. Y., May 25.—Commissioner Walpole, of the state forest, fish and game department, served notice to the milliners of the state that his department intends to use every legiti-mate means to enforce the law prohibiting the possession or sale of the bodies or feathers of wild birds.

Hunter, chief engineer of the Manchester ship canal and one of the foreign engineers charged by the president to investigate the isthmian waterway project, is confirmed in the opinion he had formed in favor of the construction of a sea level canal.

Ice Cream Poor Diet.

Little Rock, Ark., May 25.—An investigation by Dr. W. H. Abington, of the Argenta board of health, into the death of A. S. Roberts, a jewelry peddler, revealed that Roberts had tried to live on ten cents worth of ice cream
a day, and had starved to death.

Colorado Mine Burning.

Trinidad, Col., May 25.—Fire started late Thursday night in the Engle-ville mine of the Colorado Fuel & Iron company, one of the oldest in Las Animas county, and all efforts to surround and smother it have been fruitless.

quake shock was felt at two o'clock

"He who thinks he can find in himself the means of doing without others is much mistaken; but he who thinks that others cannot do without him is still more mistaken." A merchant rarely makes the first mistake—never if he is sane; but when he concludes to curtail his advertising it is a sign that he is falling into the second.

There will be something doing in state politics shortly after congress adjourns.

Conner is no longer an unknown quantity, but McGillivray appears to be trotting in a class by himself.

It's doubtful to dollars that either Davidson or Lenroot will be the next governor. No offense to democracy.

The man who wants to make a sure winner in the zinc mining district, buys a hotel and feeds the suckers. There's money in it and no rat holes to annoy.

The railroad rate bill is now before a joint committee of both Houses. It is liable to be trimmed up to some extent, but the chances are that it will not be materially modified. The people generally are not warranted in buying corner lots on the strength of what they will make on the rate bill.

Members of a commission appointed by the National Civic Federation, have just sailed for Europe to study the question of municipal ownership. August Belmont, the wealthy New Yorker, and the man at the head of the largest traction company in the United States, is president of the Civic Federation. The report of the commission will be interesting reading.

Sunday baseball can not be regulated by law any more than Sunday driving or Sunday golf. The amusement may be prohibited within city limits, but this simply means a convenient playground close by, where drunkenness and rowdiness runs riot without let or hindrance. The question of Sunday recreation is largely a question of individual conscience. It belongs to the realm of morals, always a difficult realm for the law to invade.

DAVIDSON AND CONNER.

W. J. Conner of Marshfield is out for Lieutenant Governor, and in his announcement also declares himself for Davidson. Mr. Conner goes over the situation very candidly, and says that the people are entitled to test the reforms already enacted, and that the party can not afford to continue the fight, especially as no issues are involved.

It now remains to be seen what Senator La Follette and his candidate, Lenroot, will do. There are two courses open to the senator, either of which he is liable to adopt. That he is already committed to Lenroot is generally understood, and that he will champion his cause and lead the fight for him, if he thinks the chances even for success, there is but little doubt. If, however, he decides that the Superior man can't win, it will be very easy for him to transfer his support to Davidson and Conner, and still claim a seat on the band wagon.

This he would do rather than have the conservative element of the party credited with any thing that looked like success.

If he decides to take up the fight against Davidson the contest will be lively and interesting to watch. It is plain to the most obtuse observation that the new senator is confronted with a new proposition in his own state. His own forces are divided and his old time leadership threatened. The defeat of Lenroot, or his withdrawal means defeat for the man behind the throne.

LET-US NOT LOSE FAITH.

"Because corruption has been discovered in insurance administration," says the Wall Street Journal, "that is no reason for doubting the value and soundness of life insurance. Because a bank here and there has failed on account of bad loans, violation of reserve laws, or defalcation, that is no reason for suspecting the solvency of the banking situation generally. Because railroads have given rebates and railroad officials have accepted bribes, that is no reason for abolishing railroads. Because some corporations have been mismanaged, and some monopolies have been oppressive and some companies have been over-capitalized, that is no reason why we should withhold from corporations the right to do business.

"Because some rich men have credited their wealth by methods which did not square with the moral law, that is no reason why we should join in a hue and cry against all wealth, and seek to overthrow the existing social order in order to establish a regime of socialism. Because democracy gives opportunity for graft, that is no reason why we should substitute an autocracy for it. Because some men and women go wrong, that is no reason why we should lose faith in human nature. Because there are many evils existing in the country which need reform, that is no reason why we should believe that the country is going to the dogs."

A BUSINESS ENTERPRISE.

The magazines of today, which aspire to the rank of high grade publications, and which claim to be moulders of thought and opinion, are considered by many people to be philanthropic. The publishers of these periodicals are supposed to be men of lofty ideals. Men who are not influenced by mercenary motives, but whose mission in life is to uplift the masses.

Men who stand in the front rank of reformers, whose principle occupation is to remove the lid from private and corporate corruption, and warn the public against the snares and pitfalls which beset the pathway of human experience.

This labor of love, which has been carried on so faithfully for the past two or three years, received a rough jolt when President Roosevelt delivered his famous "muck-rake" speech, and the general scramble to get to cover has brought to the surface the true inwardness of this class of reformers.

The fact has been brought to light that publishers are business men prompted by the same ambition to make money as men engaged in merchandising, or any other calling.

The magazine publisher caters to a complex constituency, because his field is large, as he attempts to reach all parts of the country. It is more difficult for him to keep his hand on the pulse of popular sentiment than it is for the publisher of a daily paper, because of the larger territory involved, but when a tidal wave of political, industrial, or commercial reform sweeps over the land, he finds that it pays to go with the tide, and so for the past two or three years the magazine publishers have catered to the popular demand, and men in public life as well as men of wealth have been ruthlessly attacked, while money has freely enriched the coffers of this class of publishers.

But, gradually, and almost imperceptibly a change of sentiment, has been going on. More people are doing their own thinking, and the mask of the cheap reformer has been removed. The discovery is being made that the socialist trend of the times is dangerous to the welfare of the republic. The trash that has filled the magazines, under high sounding titles is no longer in demand. The goods don't sell and the publisher is sharp enough to discover that future dividends demand a change of front and a more conservative policy. So he changes front, and people who imagined that he was a reformer, are disappointed.

Alfred Henry Lewis, an old magazine publisher, throws some light on the subject in the June number of "Human Life." Mr. Lewis says:

"I speak from behind the scenes, a magazine is private property. The duty it owes to the public is similar in line and feature to the public duty of an express company, a dry goods store or a butcher shop—no more, no less. The editor arranges his pages, as a shopman arranges his counters, to attract the buyer. In such counter dressing the editor is guided, not by public duty but by public taste. Like every other salesman he does his best to meet the demands of his customers half way. He does not ask, 'What should I sell them?' but, 'What will they buy?' Should his till show a shortage, his magazine a deficit, the public will not make these losses good. If his magazine cost more than it takes in, his shall be the failure, his the grief. The public, far from repairing those damages, will not so much as shed a sympathetic tear. No magazine is private property, cannot and will not be, other than private property, with a first and crying duty to its cash box, and none to the public, beyond what is announced by the law. The duty of the magazine, like the duty of the individual, is to be found in the statutes, and in no other place. Placitudinarians, and editors with a bent for hypocrisy and to play the Pecksniff, will sing otherwise, and pretend to benevolence or philanthropy as the bug-beneath the magazine chip. Those who do so are either falsifiers or fools, and you would help yourself but little by believing them."

PRESS COMMENT.

Glorious Natal Day Approaches. Milwaukee Sentinel: Meanwhile, it is about time to start something about the toy pistol.

Sheboygan's Use For Implements. Sheboygan Journal: The man with the muck rake may soon transform the Sheboygan marsh into a celery garden.

Still, We Must Have Grinders. Chicago Record-Herald: Many a man with false teeth has considered other men foolish for wearing wigs.

Few Want To; Some Must. Chicago Record-Herald: Straw hats are to be flat this year. They wore high last season. But, then, who wants to wear a last year's straw hat, anyway?

Washing Therefore Is Unpopular. Exchange: It is becoming popular in New York for women to drive coaches. Women can wear gloves while driving coaches, but not while washing dishes.

Only 3,000. Oshkosh Northwestern: Congress has passed some 3,000 bills during the present season, but apparently is saving all the more important ones for the final rush.

Denver Goes Sane. Kansas City Journal: Denver has defeated municipal ownership, and there are various other reasons for believing that Denver voters have recovered their sanity.

No Sneezing in Saxony. Milwaukee Sentinel: Any one who complains of a lack of personal liberty in Milwaukee should be shipped to Muehlhausen, Prussian Saxony, where a man was prosecuted for sneezing.

Monumental—Convincing! Milwaukee News: Mr. Houser is a poor pupil of Robert M. La Follette if he can not see in Mr. Host's reflections monumental evidence that the corporations are assailing the people's liberties.

Harper Gives Fiddler Hope. El Paso Herald: Gov. Bob Taylor, of Tennessee, has fiddled himself into the United States senate. La Follette got there by harping on the railroads, so there is something of a precedent.

Abandoned Oshkosh. Oshkosh Northwestern: The Salvation Army workers seem to have again decided to abandon Oshkosh to its fate. But of course the Sawdust city will manage to worry through in some shape.

Hatten Too Independent. Milwaukee Journal: Hatten may be "Uncle Ike's" man, but he showed too much independence at the last session for "Bob" to give him the real "blow in the bottle" endorsement. Things are getting interesting in the La Follette camp.

Slatter Was Too Much. La Crosse Leader-Press: Slatter, the so-called divine healer, has moved on to Chippewa Falls. His stay in La Crosse was brief. People of this town can be taken in on a great many schemes, but they drew the line at Slatter.

A Trying Question. La Crosse Tribune (Iron Valley News): A young married man here is likely to go to the asylum on account of studying over the problem of why the putting of the ring on a woman's third finger places himself forever under her thumb.

Odoriferous Meas Disclosed. Watertown Leader: The investigations of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company, now in progress in Milwaukee, has taken the lid off of a mass of stinking political fish and demonstrates that the suspicions as to crookedness at Madison have not been groundless.

United For the Home Team. Chicago Inter Ocean: It is all nonsense to say that we are not a happy and a united people. Take the crowd at any of the big ball games; it represents all the states of the Union and all the countries of the universe, and it is, as a rule, nevertheless, solid, or practically so, for the home team.

Just One Minute. Sharon Reporter: The astronomers tell us that a monster comet is heading for the earth with the speed of an express train. Only a few days remain in which to pay your subscription to the Reporter, for we don't care to blister our feet chasing delinquent subscribers around the intergal regions.

What Bob'll Do to Tariff. Stanley Republican: When it comes to a consideration of the tariff question, judging from his published declarations on the subject, Mr. La Follette will doubtless be found yoking with the democrats as he is at present. Roosevelt believes in maintaining the party organization for the good, which it can accomplish in the future. La Follette says "party be hanged."

Each Must Toot Own Trombone. Oshkosh Northwestern: The Green Bay Gazette quotes a "close friend" of Senator Hatten in intimating that the latter would like to run for governor, but is waiting for some kind of a "call." At the same time Mr. Hatten should understand by this time that, under the operation of a primary law, it is necessary for a candidate to get out and blow his own horn.

Erratic Lectures the Vascillating. Milwaukee Free Press: One of the amusing things in Wisconsin politics is the Milwaukee Journal lecturing Wisconsin democrats for having been "vascillating" in their political course in years gone. The democrats might, but doubtless will not, retort that they have been trying hard to follow the erratic footsteps of "the leading democratic newspaper in Wisconsin," as some of the country bumpkins call the Journal.

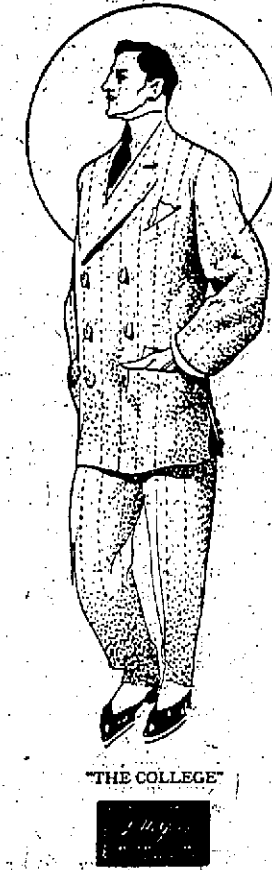

Expensive Amies.

Two young men who played the part of ghosts in Galway, Ireland, with extraordinary success, found it an expensive pastime. An elderly woman was acting as caretaker of a vacant house, and the young men gained an entrance to the upper rooms, where their antics so convinced the woman that the house was haunted that she left the place. The owner on his return, found feather beds and pictures missing, and for these the two lively ghosts have been sentenced to six months' hard labor.

The convention of the Rural Letter Carriers' association, to be held at Milwaukee, Wednesday, May 30, promises to be largely attended by carriers from all parts of the state, all of whom enjoy a vacation that day. The business sessions will be held at the St. Charles hotel, instead of Lincoln hall as previously announced, and will begin at 9 o'clock. At 10:30 Mayor Sherburne M. Becker will deliver an address of welcome to which responses will be made by T. I. Ottum of MacFarland, Wis., president of the state association; Geo. E. Page, representing the Milwaukee county carriers; and H. H. Windsor of Chicago, editor of the Rural Free Delivery News, for the National association. In the afternoon at 3:30 o'clock Postmaster David C. Ower will address the convention. The Milwaukee contingent will provide entertainment features to take up the time not occupied with business.

A baby rhinoceros is being shown at all the social functions at Nairobi, British East Africa. At a children's party the other day the quaint pet played till he was tired, drank the milk of three cows and then went to sleep. According to the local newspaper, he is shortly to be sent to London.

CARL HAGENBECK'S SHOWS ARE COMING

Plenty of Outdoor Entertainment in Sight for Janesville During Next Few Weeks.

There is every indication that Janesville is going to have plenty of outdoor entertainment this summer. The latest announcement comes from W. E. Fuller of Chicago, general manager of the Carl Hagenbeck shows, stating that they are to be brought here the latter part of June and that the contracting agent will be here to make arrangements within a few days. It is now believed that the Ringlings are not to show here until some time in July. Gentry's Dog and Pony show comes during the same month. With the carnival, two fire-fighter exhibitions, the state golf meet and possible society circus at the links, the race matinee and baseball games in prospect, no one will feel like leaving the city for a single day for fear of missing something.

They are entered as follows: Lee, shot put, 120 yd.; hurdle and 220 yd. dash; Wright, pole vault; Davis, 440 yd. dash; 100 yd. dash; and 220 yd. hurdle; Tallman, broad jump; Smith, mile and half mile runs. The relay team will be chosen from the following: Smith, Lee, Cunningham, Wright and Tallman. This is one of the fastest teams which the Janesville high school has sent up there in some years, taking every man in consideration. The teams will be accompanied by the following teachers in the high school: H. C. Buell, D. D. Manross, E. J. Haumerson, E. T. Salveley and Miss Mary Orcutt, beside the usual number of rooters.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

Little Poetry in Circus Life: Behind the glitter of circus pageantry is the prosaic, inexorable necessity of getting up to hustle at five in the morning after one has retired at three or thereabouts. So writes Sam Burdick, the Janesville young man who is driving one of the wagons for the Ringling Bros. shows. He intimates that he may be home before the season closes.

Mrs. Ingles Critically Ill: Word has been received here from William Byrne, a former professional man in Janesville who is now at the Wisconsin Veterans' Home in Waipaca, that Mrs. Agnes Ingles, also a former resident here, is dangerously ill and that her son, William, who lives in St. Louis, and her daughter, Mrs. Thomas Neeland of Milton Junction, have been summoned to her bedside.

Annual Meeting of Dentists: Several local dentists expect to attend the 12th annual convention of the Southern Wisconsin Dental association, which is to be held at Milwaukee, May 30 and 31. The executive committee meets Wednesday morning at the Hotel Pfister. The Thursday sessions will be held at the Masonic temple, Oneida and Jefferson streets. One of the thirty papers to be read Thursday will be by Dr. Thomas F. Kennedy of this city.

FIRST MATERIAL FOR NEW RAILWAY YARDS?

Fifteen Cars of Oak Ties Being Unloaded Near the Galena Street Viaduct.

Local railroad men in the employ of the North-Western company are today speculating on the fact that fifteen carloads of oak ties have arrived in the city per orders from headquarters and are being unloaded near the Galena street viaduct by Section Foreman Kuhlman's men. Every year ties are shipped in, but the consignment usually comes earlier in the spring and is of smaller size. The supply is used on the several sections centering here and is sometimes drawn on by different towns on the Madison and Northern Wisconsin divisions. But much of the spring repair work is already completed and oak ties will not be utilized on any spur track which might be laid here. The consequence is that some of the railway employees are lead to believe this is the first shipment of material to be used in constructing the new sorting yards. The oak ties would be used on the curves. The objection that they are being unloaded a mile or more from the site of the yards is answered thus: they can be continually watched by the employees and are protected from fire.

and figure you will readily see that it pays to buy PROPER LITTLE CHICK FOOD. Every little chick, when hatched, is worth ten cents. With a properly balanced ration of dry grain food you can get them through the critical period (the first five weeks) and not lose a chick. With corn meal and other sloppy foods you will probably lose twenty per cent. The difference saved in chicks more than pays for the extra cost of feed.

Stranger Calls on Kansas City Merchant in New York with Express Package Containing Large Sum of Money.

Kansas City, Mo., May 25.—Members of half a dozen large business firms admitted here Thursday, at the trial in the federal court of George H. Crosby, the Burlington traffic manager, George L. Thomas, the New York freight broker, and the latter's clerk, L. B. Taggart, that they had received thousands of dollars in commissions from "unknown sources." All of the firms had hired Thomas, to attend to the shipping of their goods from the Atlantic seaboard to their stores in St. Louis and Kansas City, but none of the witnesses would say that these sums of money had come from Thomas.

W. E. Emery, a member of the Emery-Bird-Thayer Dry Goods company, of Kansas City, who admitted receiving from $1,500 to $2,000 a year, said he did not know who sent it, but "supposed it came from Thomas." Notwithstanding the large sums thus paid in commissions, none of the firms had kept any record of the amounts, according to the witness. All payments were made in New York.

Rebate Vouchers Missing.

Several officials of the Burlington railway were examined as to the payment of these commissions, and their testimony developed the fact that the vouchers for the amounts had disappeared.

The government rested its side of the case in the afternoon, when Judge O. M. Spencer, for the defendants, filed a demurrer in all the cases, arguing that no evidence had been produced to show a case of conspiracy, and even if such evidence had been presented the court lacked jurisdiction as the alleged crime was committed in New York and not in Missouri. He asked that the case of Crosby be dismissed. Judge Smith McPherson overruled the motion as to Crosby.

Took Money Without Question.

Hugh McKittick testified to receiving money twice while in the New York office. Once in 1902, an express package containing $2,000 was received by witness. He did not know where it came from. The money was credited in a book used for odds and ends. "At another time," said the witness, "a gentleman came in, handed me the money, and said it was coming to me. He did not know the man; did not ask his name, and did not care to know it."

Mr. Kelby, Thomas' clerk, was asked to stand up. McKittick was unable to identify him as the man who had given him the money.

J. K. Burnham, president of the Burnham-Hanna Munger Dry Goods company, of Kansas City, testified that he had hired Thomas at a salary of $1,000 a year, for attending to the freight business of the firm's Kansas City and Detroit houses. Burnham admitted having received $43,000 from Thomas in the past three years. "This was, I suppose," said the witness, "for mistakes in classification, claims for damages, etc. All money was paid to me in New York, I think."

W. E. Emery, a member of Emery, Bird & Thayer Dry Goods company, of Kansas City, testified that he had hired Thomas for four or five years at a salary of $500 a year, and that in that time he had received between $1,500 and $2,000 a year. This money was given to him at his office in New York. Some one could call him up on the telephone, witness said, and say that the (Emery) were to be in his office for a while something would be sent to him. Later "a" package containing money was sent in. He did not know who had sent it, but supposed it came from Thomas.

Contract in Evidence.

The government introduced as evidence a contract entered into by George C. Smith, now dead, for the Smith-McCord-Townsend Dry Goods company, of Kansas City, and Thomas. It provided, in addition to a commission of 2 1/2 cents a hundred pounds on "incoming shipments" and a guarantee of $500 a year, that Thomas "should route all shipments except those that were prepaid and on which no rebate or allowance can be held."

Judge H. C. Timmonds, of counsel for the defense, objected to the introduction of the contract because it was dated 1901—previous to the adoption of the Elkins law. However, it was admitted subject to a ruling which the court is to give later as to the admissibility of everything heard thus far in the trial.

Louis F. Beideman, a freight claim investigator for the Burlington railway, said he had handled claims filed by Thomas and Taggart, but could not remember the dates of any. Some were claims for "overcharges and commissions." He always investigated the first class of claims, not those for commissions. They were all sent him by L. F. Moore, his superior officer, who made voucher for the amounts. He did not investigate commission claims because he was not told to do so. No names were entered in the record of such claims, the witness said, just numbers. Claims for commission sometimes were for thousands of dollars. He did not know what the commissions were for.

OIL INDEPENDENTS HAVE HARD HUSTLE

PLACE BLAME FOR EVILS ON THE STANDARD COMPANY.

FORCE OUT WEAK CONCERN

Big Corporation Is Alleged to Resort to All Sorts of Methods to Take Customers from Its Rival.

Cleveland, O., May 25.—In two protracted sessions Thursday the interstate commerce commission, Members Prouty and Clements in attendance, heard evidence bearing upon the business methods of the Standard Oil company. The sessions were a continuation of the investigation adjourned in Chicago nearly two weeks ago. The hearing may be extended into next week. Only four witnesses were examined Thursday. Those who testified were: F. B. Westgate, of Titusville, Pa., treasurer and general manager of the American Oil works; State Senator Louis Emery, of Bradford, Pa.; State Senator J. W. Lee, of Pittsburgh, and Frank B. Fretter, secretary of the National Refining company, of Cleveland, and president of the National Pipe Line company, having several pipe lines in Ohio oil fields.

Railroads Aided Trust.
Senator Emery told of the alleged spy system of the Standard to obtain information concerning the business of rivals.

He had a contest, he said, not more than a year ago, with the Pennsylvania railroad. A field of oil had been found in the vicinity of Steubenville, O., and he obtained a rate of 12 cents a hundred gallons to Bradford, Pa. The rate was allowed for only a few days, however, and was increased to 17 cents. In investigating the matter, Senator Emery ascertained that the Pennsylvania company had an oil committee created, he declared, at the instance of the Standard Oil company to have entire charge of oil shipments.

With his fighting clothes on, he said he had invaded the general office of the Pennsylvania company and after being refused admittance to several officers, finally reached one of them and had a heated controversy with him. By threatening to bring the matter before the interstate commerce commission he obtained the desired rate in a few days.

Run Companies at Loss.
State Senator J. W. Lee, of Pittsburgh, was called next. He told of the formation and operation of several oil companies, by himself and others in the last 12 years which he said were run at a loss for several years because of the Standard's methods. In 1895, he testified, the situation for the oil companies in the Pennsylvania fields was such that he organized a fourth company, not, he said, for the purpose of making money, but to sustain the losses.

The witness said that it was a godsend for the independents that Senator Emery, who testified before him, succeeded in getting a pipe line through to the seacoast. Had it not been for that, he said, his independent company could have lived for six months longer.

Worried by Standard Agents.

Frank B. Fretter testified that he was secretary of the National Refining company, of Cleveland, and president of the National Line company operating small pipe lines in the fields of Findlay, Marietta, Homeworth and Silo. He testified in part:

"We established our pipe line in the Findlay field in 1898 and we had no sooner begun getting customers than Standard Oil emissaries began following us up, that we could not be relied upon and that pretty soon the Marietta Pipe Line company was built in our territory ostensibly as an independent concern, but in reality backed by the Standard."

At this point Attorney Kline objected to the line of inquiry, stating that as it affected only the state of Ohio it was not a proper subject for the commissioners to handle. The commissioners held otherwise and the witness proceeded.

Holds His Customers.

"When this situation developed we called our customers together and pointed out the past history of the oil business, showing them that when a competition like us was driven out that the producers were worse off than ever. We induced our customers to stay with us and we have made our business a success. In the Marietta field the same tactics, but we lost only one customer and I see that the Vacuum Oil company, which was put in there to drive us out, has sold out to the Standard."

"In 1899 I all but closed a contract with the Rock Island system to lubricate it for a year. General Manager Treasider was just going to sign it when he stopped to think a minute and then told me to come around in a day or two. When I came around he refused to sign and said his action was because Mr. Barstow, of the Standard Oil company, was a director in the Rock Island. My last attempt was to sell to the Santa Fe system. I had to go to Traffic Manager Paul Morton. Morton said to me 'There is no use wasting words. You could not begin to give us the tonnage the Standard does. It is to our interests to deal with those who give us the most business.'"

"That showed me the error of my way, and I immediately ceased all efforts among the railroads."

CAUSTIC OPINION OF THE DEPUTIES

HOW WASHINGTON LOOKS ON LIAR INCIDENT.

BY WILLIAM WOLFF SMITH

Gazette Correspondent Views Washington Situation as Very Funny.

Indeed—Joke on Tillman.

(By William Wolff Smith.)

Washington, D. C., May 25.—(Special correspondence.)—Now that the smoke of battle has cleared away those who have been following the progress of the railroad rate bill through the senate from the standpoint of spectators rather than participants, can take an inventory of the dead and wounded and reckon the accounts. It is to be regretted that the democrats in the senate fared so badly in the encounter. This is due primarily to their numerical weakness, and secondarily to the alliance they made with President Roosevelt. Years ago the writer was told by an experienced and distinguished Washington correspondent that although this is the hub of the government it was the worst place in the country in which to judge public sentiment. Each year adds force and verification to that statement. This probably because we are too near the stage, practically on it and behind the scenes, to properly gauge the effect the play will have upon the audience. As familiarly breeds contempt, so close association with public life leads to critical inspection, and as no man is a hero to his valet, so the greatness of a man in the country shrinks with every mile that brings him nearer to Washington. Constant handling of money is said to make men's hands callous and constant association with the great law-makers is apt to lead to irreverence and, in truth, an under estimate of their true worth, and the part they are playing in history-making. Consequently, while we in Washington are perhaps better able to weigh the men themselves than those at a distance, the tendency is to depreciate rather than laud them. It is not, therefore, strange that President Roosevelt has come in for such severe criticism in our little, local family circle for his course on the railroad rate bill. To be sure little of this adverse criticism will find its way to the general public. Once in a while a Bailey or a Tillman will fill the senate chamber with the odor of scorching feathers, or a Rayner will gently apply a poultice of hot tomatoes to a blistered spot. The opposition press will rail and rant, but in the end little of what is said and thought here ever reaches the country. Nor will conditions change as long as Roosevelt continues to be the public idol for the denunciations of the opposition are credited with being merely a bad case of sour grapes, while no matter how they may condemn his course in private, who of the republicans in the senate or house, candidates for re-election, will go before their constituents criticizing Roosevelt?

Mild Criticism

The course of the President on the railroad rate question may be likened to a man on a horseback journey determined to reach his goal at all costs and in the speediest manner possible. He might get there eventually on one horse, but by changing frequently he saves time and arrives at his destination fresh and triumphant. It is unfortunate for Senators Tillman and Bailey that they supplied the last relay but one in this "pony express" but the country looks at the fact that the rider arrived safely and in the time of general rejoicing, who is there to lament on the broken-winded horses abandoned en route? Yet no one can deny the democrats a modicum of praise—they proved admirable cats-paws and pulled the chestnuts out of the fire for the President in fine style. That they are now exhibiting their burned toes and calling public attention to their wounds is more likely to secure them derision than sympathy.

Publicly Remanded.

Senator Tillman had once been publicly reprimanded, one might almost say insulted, by President Roosevelt, who cancelled his invitation to a dinner at the White House. Since then the two have not been on speaking terms. That Mr. Tillman should have swallowed the insult and his wounded feelings in an effort to accomplish what he thought was for the public good, is very creditable to the senator from South Carolina, but he should have known Roosevelt better. Since the latter has been President he has denounced men in wholesale not to say reckless fashion, as liars, thieves and much-rakers. Never once has he apologized for any such remarks. Now it is possible that his judgment is infallible; that when he terms a man a rascal or a liar that settles it. Once in a while a court disagrees with him and then the judge gets properly scored. But to cooler minds it would seem that our chief executive is sometimes a "teeny weeny" bit too impetuous, that in the midst of a busy life, which includes the regulation of everything from football to congress and the courts, he may sometimes make a mistake. One thing, however, should be said to his credit, if he ever has made a mistake he has never acknowledged it, so that as far as he himself is concerned his record for infallibility is unblemished.

More Facts

But Senator Tillman should have recognized first that the President was principally concerned in "getting there" and that he held that "any thing" was better than "nothing," so that he should have remembered that no matter how they fight among themselves, in the end the republicans are united. Finally, he should have refused to enter into an alliance with the President through the medium of a third party and that party not immediately concerned with the subject of the negotiations. As he overlooked three points he should not have been surprised when the President threw him and his associates over and marched to victory at the head of his recruited party, with the flags flying and the band playing.

MESSMER'S ATTITUDE A SURPRISE TO MANY

Moderate Use of Liquors is Said to Be All Right by Bishop.

A paper written by Archbishop Messmer of the Milwaukee diocese, which was read before the Wisconsin Antislavery league convention in Madison, has caused a sensation. Archbishop Messmer is now on his way to Europe and his paper was read by a clergyman whom he delegated to the task.

That moderate enjoyment of an exhilarating liquor is no great wrong than the enjoyment of a cooling dish of ice cream or a plate of citron flavored with blue points was one of the contentions contained in the address.

Not Always Injurious.

It is unnecessary to state that I use the term temperance in the usual strict sense as applied to the use of intoxicants, not in the wider sense of moderation in the use and enjoyment of any earthly goods. Hence in itself and under normal conditions the moderate enjoyment of an exhilarating liquor is no greater wrong than the enjoyment of a cooling dish of ice cream or of a plate of citron flavored with blue points or of a glass of sweetened lemonade.

But we are told, alcohol is most injurious to the system and the natural law forbids man to needlessly injure his health. Hence it is always wrong to take it. But is alcohol always injurious? To me it is one of those temperate exaggerations that we sometimes hear from the unguarded lips of professional temperance speakers. Neither science nor medicine, nor experience supports this statement; they flatly contradict it. But, they insist, intoxicants do no good. Well, what of it? We may grant that alcohol is not usually necessary or good for man's health when regularly taken; we may admit, generally speaking, that it is better and in every way more profitable for man to abstain entirely from strong drinks.

Moderate Use Defended.

But even the moderate use of strong drink leads gradually to intemperance. So we are told. But the statement lacks proof. Such may, indeed, be the result in some cases when it will not in a hundred other cases. What rule then must be followed? On the principle that every man is bound by natural and divine law to avoid the danger and near occasion of sin just as he is bound to avoid the sin itself, we maintain that whenever or wherever the moderate use of liquor becomes for any one a danger or occasion of intemperance, that man is bound under a divine sanction, to abstain altogether.

Is a Comedy.

So "it is to laugh" as we say here, and what might have been a tragedy turns out a comedy. The principal thing with which the country is concerned is that the President "got there," the method of arriving is of minor consideration. And one good lesson was learned by both the President and the democratic senators, and that is that while the country takes this episode good-naturedly it wants no more such "unholy alliances" with bed-chamber conferences and a dark cloak go-between mysteriously stealing in and out. Let the President fight with the rear-guard, and let the democrats in the senate and the campaigns in their conference room and not pang around the conference room, and not hang around the engagements as "supers" to carry water to the republican elephant.

CRIME IS RECALLED BY PLEA OF PARDON

Horrible Murder Near Ft. Atkinson of Years Ago Brought to Mind Again.

Residents of Janesville in 1877 remember well the trial of Edward Eckhart for one of the most brutal murders ever committed in this section of the state. The crime and its awful details are recalled now that arguments are being made before the Governor for his pardon from Wau-pun, where he is serving a life sentence.

On Sunday afternoon, December 16, 1877, the body of an unknown man was found horribly mutilated in a brush pile near the tracks between Fort Atkinson and Jefferson. He was identified as Charles Peterson of Chicago, who was walking to Green Bay in search of work. On December 29 a youth named Charles Whitney confessed to being implicated in the murder, and he named Eckhart as the murderer. His story at the trial was that Peterson laid down by their fire at night and Eckhart awoke and calling to his companion, Whitney said: "I'm going to shoot him." He fired close to Peterson's head, and the wounded man started to run but was tripped and shot again by Eckhart, who commanded Whitney to cleave his head with their ax. Whitney testified that Eckhart threatened to kill him if he failed, and with Eckhart's revolver at his head he struck the man. Then Eckhart himself chopped the body many times, took Peterson's tobacco and put on the dead man's boots and coat, threw the body into a brush pile and started for Appleton. Here Whitney and Eckhart parted. From Jefferson to Appleton, Eckhart threatened Whitney with instant death if he dared turn back. When Eckhart was arrested he wore the coat of Peterson and the shoes. Whitney turned state's evidence and received a light sentence.

Eckhart was most indifferent throughout the trial, and refused to take the witness stand in his own behalf to deny the terrible story of Whitney. The body of Peterson was exhumed and the story of Whitney corroborated. It is said that Eckhart said only one word, "No," during the trial, and that was when the judge asked him if he had anything to say before sentence was pronounced. Eckhart has served twenty-eight years in the state's prison.

LABOR NOTES

Japanese carpenters earn 11 cents a day, and stone cutters, 12 cents.

Longshoremen in Boston, Mass., threaten to strike unless their demands are conceded by the steamship companies. The longshoremen demand an increase of 10 cents an hour to 40 cents on all bulk cargo, and 5 cents an hour for additional overtime. The longshoremen in Boston number 4,600.

President F. L. Robbins of the Pittsburgh Coal company, has expressed the opinion that there will be no strike of the bituminous miners, and declares that there may be another conference before April 1, when differences will be settled.

In Germany, children under 15 years of age cannot be employed at any occupation.

The Cigarmakers' Journal has commended the proposition to turn the strike fund of the Cigarmakers' union into a loan fund for the purpose of enabling members of the union to build homes for themselves or to go into business. Leading officials of the union also have approved the plan.

Signs are being taken in Chicago for the formation of an arbitration board of teamsters and team owners, which will adjust all differences that may arise in the future.

It is claimed that if the railway rate regulation bill passes congress President Roosevelt will appoint Edward E. Clarke, head of the Order of Railway Conductors, as a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

WIRELESS TELEGRAPH EXPLAINED IN CLASS

High School Students Have Wonderful Experiments Shown Them.

These are interesting days for the students of the high school in the Senior class. Not only in the preparing for commencement but in the class work as well. Especially interesting is the first period in the morning, which is devoted to the entire class in listening to a lecture given by Mr. John Arbuthnot, instructor in physics. The school is very well supplied with apparatus making it very much easier and pleasanter for him to demonstrate whatever he undertakes. Yesterday morning the time was devoted to the explaining and showing the way in which the wireless telegraph works and is operated. The machine worked to such perfection that by placing one of the machines in one room it rang an electrical bell in another without the use of wires. The apparatus was so arranged that a bell was rung at some distance by making a spark of electricity with the Holtz Sparking Machine. Several other interesting experiments have been performed in the last few days by Mr. Arbuthnot, among them are the electrical telegraph, telephone and X-ray demonstrations.

New Kind of Race.

Items in the first great athletic meeting held in China, which took place at Canton, were arithmetic races. Pupils from schools carried states and peccols, and in the course of the race they encountered a blackboard containing a sum to be solved. The boys were lined up as they reached the goal, and those whose calculations were wrong were then eliminated. The first three left in the line were counted winners.

Mutual Aid.

At a banquet given to the delegates of mutual aid societies in Paris last week 25,000 bottles of red wine, 25,000 bottles of white wine, 25,000 bottles of beer and 10,000 bottles of champagne were provided, yet every delegate reached his home in safety. That shows what mutual aid can do.—San Francisco News Letter.

By RIDER HAGGARD

Author of "She," "King Solomon's Mines," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1903-1904, BY RIDER HAGGARD.

"For Rosamund's sake, so be it," answered Wulf. Then he called to Masouda and Flame, and they stretched themselves out upon the sand and passed these swifter, than swallows. Soon Godwin and Masouda, holding hands, saw them enter the mouth of the pass.

"Who was the man who brought the horses to us?" asked Godwin as they galloped side by side, their eyes fixed upon the ever narrowing cloud of dust.

"My father's brother—my uncle, as I called him," she answered. "He is a sheik of the desert, who owns the ancient breed that cannot be bought for gold."

"Then you are not of the assassins, Masouda?"

"No, I may tell you, now that the end seems so near. My father was an Arab, my mother a noble Frank, a Frenchwoman, whom he found starving in the desert after a fight and took to his tent and made his wife. The assassins, tell upon us and killed him and her and captured me as a child of twelve. Afterward, when I grew older, being beautiful in those days, I was taken to the harem of Sinan, and, although in secret I had been bred up a Christian by my mother, they swore me to his accursed faith. Now you will understand why I hate him so sorely who murdered my father and my mother and made me what I am—why I hold myself so vile. Yes, I have been forced to serve as his spy or be killed."

"I do not hold you vile," panted Godwin as he spurred his laboring steed. "I hold you most noble."

"I rejoice to hear it before we die," she answered, looking him in the eyes in such a fashion that he dropped his head before her burning gaze. "Who hold you dear, Sir Godwin, for whose sake I have dared these things, although I am naught to you? Nay, speak not. The Lady Rosamund has told me all that story—except its answer."

Now they were off, the sand over which they had been racing side by side and beginning to breast the mountain slope. So far they had outpaced the assassins, who had a longer and a rougher road to travel, but the great cloud of dust was not 700 yards away, and in front of it, shaking their spears, rode some of the best mounted of their soldiers.

"These horses still have strength. They are better than I thought them," cried Masouda. "They will not gain on us across the mountains, but afterward."

For the next league they spoke no more, who must keep their horses from falling as they toiled up the steep path. At length they reached the crest, and there, on the very top of it, saw Wulf and Rosamund standing by Flame and Smoke.

"They rest," Godwin said; then he shouted. "Mount! Mount! The foe is close!"

So they climbed to their saddles again, and all four of them together began to descend the long slope that stretched to the plain two leagues beneath. Far off across this plain ran a broad, silver streak beyond which from that height they could see the walls of a city.

"The Orontes," cried Masouda. "Cross that, and we are safe." But Godwin looked first at his horse, then at Masouda, and shook his head.

Well might he do so, for, stout hearted as they were, the beasts were much distressed, that had galloped so far without drawing rein. Down the steep road they plunged, panting.

"They will reach the plain—no more," said Godwin, and Masouda nodded.

The descent was almost done, and not a mile behind them the white-robed assassins streamed endlessly. Godwin pined his spurs and Masouda her whip, though with little hope, for they knew that the end was near. Down the last declivity they rushed, till suddenly as they reached its foot Masouda's horse reared, stopped and sank to the ground, while Godwin's pulled up beside it.

"Ride on!" he cried to Rosamund and Wulf in front, but they would not. He stormed at them, but they replied: "Nay, we will die together."

Masouda looked at the horses Flame and Smoke, which seemed but little troubled.

"So be it," she said. "Mount in front of the lady, Sir Godwin, and, Sir Wulf, give me your hand, and you will learn what this breed can do."

So they mounted. Forward started Flame and Smoke with a long, swinging gallop, while from the assassins above, who thought that they held them, went up a shout of rage and wonder.

"Their horses are also tired, and we may beat them yet," called the damnable Masouda. But Godwin and Wulf, looked sadly at the ten miles of plain between them and the river bank.

On they went and on. A quarter of it was done. Half of it was done, but now the first of the feds lay upon their flanks, not 200 yards behind. Little by little this distance lessened. At length they were scarcely fifty yards away, and one of them flung a spear.

"Spur the horses, knights!" cried Masouda.

At the sting of the steel Flame and Smoke sprang forward as though they had but just left their stable door, and the gap between pursuers and pursued widened. Two more miles were done, and scarce seven furlongs from them they saw the broad mouth of the bridge, with the towers of Emesa beyond. They descended a little valley and lost sight of bridge and town.

At the rise of the opposing slope the strength of Flame and Smoke, at last began to fall beneath their double burdens. They panted and trembled, and save in short rushes, no longer answered to the spur. The assassins saw, and came on with wild shouts. Nearer and nearer they drew, and the sound of their horses' hoofs beating on the sand was like the sound of thunder. Now once more they were fifty yards away, and now but thirty, and again the spears began to flash, though none struck them.

Masouda screamed to the horses in Arabic, and gallantly did they struggle, plunging up the hill with slow, convulsive bounds. Godwin and Wulf looked at each other, then, at a signal, checked their speed, leaped to earth and, turning, drew their swords.

"Out!" they cried, and lightened of their weight once more the reeling horses plunged forward.

The assassins were upon them. Wulf struck a mighty blow and emptied the saddle of the first; then was swept to earth. As he fell from behind him he heard a scream of joy and, struggling to his knees, looked round. Lo, from over the crest of the rise rushed squadron upon squadron of turbaned cavalry, who as they came set their lances in rest and shouted:

"Salah-ed-din! Salah-ed-din!"

The assassins saw also and turned to fly too late!

"A horse! A horse!" screamed Godwin in Arabic, and presently, how he never knew, found himself mounted and charging with the Saracens.

To Wulf, too, a horse was brought, but he could not struggle to its saddle. Thrice he strove, then, fell backward and lay upon the sand, waving his sword and shouting where he lay.

Now the pursuers were the pursued, and dreadful was the reckoning that they must pay. Their horses were worn and could not fly at speed. Some of the feds were cut down upon them. Some dismounted and, gathering themselves in little groups, fought bravely till they were slain, while a few were taken prisoners. Of all that great troop of men not a score was back alive to Masouda.

A while later and Wulf, from his seat upon the ground saw Godwin riding back toward him, his sword in his hand. With him rode a sturdy, bright-eyed man, gorgeously appareled, at the sight of whom Rosamund sprang to her feet.

"Hassan! Prince Hassan! Is it indeed you? Oh, God be praised!" she gasped.

The emir looked at her, her long hair loose, her face stained, her veil torn, but still clad in the silk and gleaming gems with which she had been decked, as the bride of Salah-ed-din, commander of the faithful.

Then, in stately salutation to this disheveled, outworn, but still queenly woman, up rose hand and spear and saluted, while Wulf cried from where he lay:

"Taking the hem of her garment, he kissed it."

So they mounted. Forward started Flame and Smoke with a long, swinging gallop, while from the assassins above, who thought that they held them, went up a shout of rage and wonder.

"Their horses are also tired, and we may beat them yet," called the damnable Masouda. But Godwin and Wulf, looked sadly at the ten miles of plain between them and the river bank.

On they went and on. A quarter of it was done. Half of it was done, but now the first of the feds lay upon their flanks, not 200 yards behind. Little by little this distance lessened. At length they were scarcely fifty yards away, and one of them flung a spear.

"Spur the horses, knights!" cried Masouda.

At the sting of the steel Flame and Smoke sprang forward as though they had but just left their stable door, and the gap between pursuers and pursued widened. Two more miles were done, and scarce seven furlongs from them they saw the broad mouth of the bridge, with the towers of Emesa beyond. They descended a little valley and lost sight of bridge and town.

At the rise of the opposing slope the strength of Flame and Smoke, at last began to fall beneath their double burdens. They panted and trembled, and save in short rushes, no longer answered to the spur. The assassins saw, and came on with wild shouts. Nearer and nearer they drew, and the sound of their horses' hoofs beating on the sand was like the sound of thunder. Now once more they were fifty yards away, and now but thirty, and again the spears began to flash, though none struck them.

Masouda screamed to the horses in Arabic, and gallantly did they struggle, plunging up the hill with slow, convulsive bounds. Godwin and Wulf looked at each other, then, at a signal, checked their speed, leaped to earth and, turning, drew their swords.

"Out!" they cried, and lightened of their weight once more the reeling horses plunged forward.

The assassins were upon them. Wulf struck a mighty blow and emptied the saddle of the first; then was swept to earth. As he fell from behind him he heard a scream of joy and, struggling to his knees, looked round. "Why, it is our merchant of the drugged wine—none other!" Oh, Sir Saracen, does not the memory of that chapman's trick shame you now?"

The emir Hassan heard and grew red, muttering in his beard:

"Like you, Sir Wulf, I am the slave of fate and must obey. Do not bitter against me till you know all."

"I am not bitter," answered Wulf, "but I always pay for my drink, and we will settle that score yet."

"Hush!" broke in Rosamund. "Although he stole me, he is also my deliverer and friend through many a peril."

"I do not know all the story, but, princess, it seems that you should thank not me, but these goodly cousins of yours and those splendid horses," said Hassan.

"There is another whom I must thank also—this noble woman, as you will call her also when you hear the story," said Rosamund, flinging her arm about the neck of Masouda.

"My master will reward her," said Hassan. "But, O lady, what must you think of me who seemed to desert you so basely? Yet I reasoned well. In the castle of that son of Satan, Sinan, and he spat upon the ground."

"I could not have aided you, for there he would only have butchered me. But by escaping I thought that I might help, so I bribed the Frankish knave with the priceless star of my house, and he touched the great jewel that he wore in his turban, and with what money I had, to loose my bonds, and while he pouched the gold I stabbed him with his own knife and fled. But this morning I reached your city in command of 10,000 men charged to rescue you if I could; if not, to avenge you for the ambassadors of Salah-ed-din informed me of your plight. An hour ago the watchmen on the towers reported that they saw two horses galloping across the plain beneath a double burden, pursued by soldiers whom from their robes they took to be assassins. So, as I have a quarrel with the assassins, I crossed the bridge, formed up 500 men in a hollow and waited, never guessing that it was you who fled. You know the rest—and the assassins know it also," he added grimly.

"Follow it up," said Wulf, "and the vengeance shall be better, for I will show you the secret way into Masouda's tower. If I cannot, Godwin will—and there you may hunt Sinan from his own towers."

Hassan shook his head and answered: "I should like it well, for with this magician my master also has an ancient quarrel. But he has other feuds upon his hands, and he looked meaningfully at Wulf and Godwin, and my orders were to rescue the princess, and no more. Well, she has been rescued, and some hundreds of heads have paid the price of all that she has suffered. Also that secret way of yours will be safe enough by now. So there I let the matter slide, glad enough that it has ended thus. Only I warn you all—and myself also—to walk warily, since, if I know enough of him, Sinan's feds will, henceforth, dog the steps of every one of us, striving to bring us to our ends by murder. Now here come litters. Enter them, all of you, and be borne to the city, who have ridden far enough today. I go to count the slain and will join you presently in the citadel."

So the bearers came and lifted up Wulf and helped Godwin from his horse—for now that all was over he could scarcely stand—and with him Rosamund and Masouda. Placing them in the litters, they carried them, escorted by cavalry, across the bridge of the Orontes into the city of Emesa, where they lodged them in the citadel.

The four—Rosamund, Masouda, Godwin and Wulf—after the hurts of Wulf had been tended by a skilled doctor, went to their beds, whence they did not rise again for two days.

CONTAGIOUS BLOOD POISON
THE WORST DISEASE IN THE WORLD

Contagious Blood Poison is the worst disease in the world, not only those who contract it suffer, but the awful taint is often transmitted to innocent offspring whose lives are blighted and bodies diseased because the virus of Contagious Blood Poison has been allowed to remain in the family blood.

The first sign of this disease is usually a little pimple or blister, then a red rash breaks out, the mouth and throat ulcerate, the hair comes out, copper-colored spots appear on the limbs, back and breast; and as the disease more thoroughly pollutes the blood, sores and ulcers form and if the trouble is not checked the finger of the nose and head are destroyed.

S. S. S. goes down into the blood and forces out every particle of the poison and makes a complete and lasting cure. As soon as the system gets under the influence of the remedy the symptoms begin to pass away, and when the cure is complete the patient is left in perfect health.

So thoroughly does S. S. S. rid the system of the virus that no signs of the disease are ever seen again years and posterity is born with a rich, pure blood supply. Book with complete instructions for home treatment and any medical advice desired will be given without charge.

THIS IS A VENOMOUS BIRD
Feared in New Guinea Because of Its Savage Attacks on Men.

Rip n' doob, of New Guinea, is the name, not of a man, but of a bird—the only venomous bird that exists.

That there should be one venomous bird is not strange. It is strange there are not many more than one, for birds, anatomists say, are reptiles—prehistoric snakes that, in the dim past, put forth wings and sprouted feathers.

So, since there are so many venomous serpents, it is natural enough that there should be one venomous bird, the rip n' doob.

The rip n' doob is held in fear in New Guinea, for it is singularly savage. It will not, when feeding, flee at a man's approach. It will, on the contrary, attack the man if he draws too near.

The rip n' doob's venomous bite causes burning pain all over the body, convulsions and temporary blindness. Sometimes lockjaw sets in; then the patient dies.

No one but a native can pronounce the rip n' doob's name.

An interesting trade union case is before the English courts. The South Wales Miners' Federation some time ago, by a vote of 59,570 to 22,224, decided to levy an annual assessment on its members for the support of members who are in the house of commons.

A member has sued for an injunction to restrain the federation from levying on him on pain of being blacklisted, for the payment of the salaries of M. P.'s of another political faith than his own.

Women Who Are Free From Female Ills Sleep Soundly

How many women are troubled with insomnia! How few, alas, habitually sleep the night through and rise refreshed. If you can't sleep it is because your nerves will not let your body rest. Women's nervous troubles come from female diseases. Their delicate organism is a network of intricate nerves. No woman can suffer from female irregularities without eventually ruining her nervous system. Get rid of female disease and the perfect sleep of childhood will return.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

cures all female troubles and restores nerve equilibrium and brings sound, restful, healthful, natural sleep. Thus does this wonderful remedy operate to bring health to suffering women.

Wakefulness and Nervousness Cured
Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—Last spring, I lost my appetite, had headaches, and bearing down pains with cramps so that I was in perfect misery. I became wakeful and extremely nervous.
I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and am pleased to state that I derived immediate benefit and soon enjoyed permanent relief.
Within eight weeks I was restored to normal health and felt refreshed and strengthened as though I had enjoyed a lengthy vacation.
Since that time I have recommended your Compound to a number of my lady friends suffering with female irregularities, and those who have used it report great benefit from its use.

THE TEST IS BEST

Go over CLOTHCRAFT garments point by point, the fabrics, the patterns, the graceful lines, the lay of the collar, the shaped shoulders, the trimmings, the finish, the faultlessness of the general ensemble and you will not wonder then at the giant strides CLOTHCRAFT has made in the clothing world.

The sooner you learn why you should wear this famous make, the sooner you begin to save, and the sooner you discover that every builder and wearer of good clothes can learn something in clothes craft from CLOTHCRAFT.

We can sell "all wool" without a blush because the best woolen mills in the land know too well that they dare not submit a yard of questionable cloth to go into CLOTHCRAFT garments—that's clothing insurance for you.

CLOTHCRAFT is not merely a high grade distinguishing mark, but a name that has made a mark in tailoring triumph; it means service, protection: ask for CLOTHCRAFT CLOTHES and be sure you're safe.

Suppose you step in and test your senses of sight and touch, we fear not your verdict.

THE ATTIC PHILOSOPHER.
Never look a gift auto in the oil tank.
Love finds the way in and sense the way out.
If you can't be good you can at least be careful.
Sometimes a thing will meet you half way if you start first.
It's generally the small minds that find the petty things in life.
It's hard work making people think you are having a good time.
When a man gets too lazy to work he cries down with the rich.
The good things you covet never seem so good after you get them.
Many a man has given up when success was tugging at his coat tails.
It will help you to succeed if you count every cent and make every cent count.
When a girl is nice to you it's hard to tell whether she really likes you or wants a favor.
People who wouldn't borrow a nickel will borrow a hundred dollars' worth of trouble without provocation.
If everybody led ideal lives the world would get monotonous, and newspapers have to go out of business.
Sometimes it's a question of who gets the most in a matrimonial venture—the preacher or the contracting parties.—Will F. Griffin in Milwaukee Sentinel.

THE GOOD LISTENER.
The other day I was drinking tea with a number of young women.
Most of us earned our living in some way or other.
Some were writers, one a singer, another an artist, and so on.
Naturally, the talk hinged more or less on our several occupations.
One young woman who had taken no part in the conversation, burst forth abruptly: "Dear me! I have no accomplishments. I'm nothing but a good listener."
"Nothing but a good listener!"—there's food for thought in that.
If the majority of us did less talking and more listening, both the world and ourselves would be better off.
The good listener is never at a loss for friends.
In order to listen well you must listen intelligently.
Good listening does not consist of merely sitting still and refraining from speech.
It means that you say little, but that what you do say bears intelligently on the point discussed.
